

Supplemental Syllabus Statement Re: Recording Classes

This course involves discussions, some of which may be of a personal or sensitive nature, and students are expected to demonstrate civility, respect and discretion both during and following such discussions. As a general rule, students may not record this class without my prior written permission. However, you should be aware there may be some students in class who have approved accommodations through The Center for Academic Success and Accessibility Services (CASAS) that permit them to record the class for the purpose of assisting with note-taking. Such students are not required to identify themselves to other students in the class.
